To stranger perceived my emberrassment, it did not, of course, divine the cause;— laid aside the map, and, guessing from t did not, of course, divine the cause;—he laid aside the map, and, guessing from my dress that I was an Englishman; politily rose from his seat, and in a mild tone, inquired whether I was looking for the crange-tree denominated "Francis the Second!" Upon my enswering affirmatively/he point-ed to it, and, referring to the probability of its having been planted by the hands of a sovereign, he said, "that little doubt could be entertained as to the fact: you English gentlemen," he added, "heep a genealogigentlemen," he added, " seep a genealogical list, whereby you trace the pedigree of your rane horses; and before the Revolution, a register, which I have in my possession, was preserved by the Director of the Royal Gardens, in which were enrefully inscribed the name of the most celebrated und luxuriant trees, and the persons by whom they were planted. Yonder, case, marked 24, bears the name of Madame La Valliere, still fresh and beautiful as was the lovely horticulturist;—by its side stands another, called Mathane de Pompadour, a perfect prototype of this woman—tall, inspessio, but impaired with age, notwithstandestic, but impaired with age, notwithstan-ing the art that has been used in plasterin over its withered branches to prevent further decay. Residing in the vicinity of this Chateau, I often come into the Orangery, and sit for hours under the shade of these fine exotics. I mentioned the name of Monsieur de B., whose house was about a mile from the Park, and told him I was going to discuss the state of the product of the state o ing to dine there. "That gentleman is one of my friends," replied the atranger; "I will, if you permit, accompany you thither, being on such terms with that excellent man, that I can, without being doesned an We proceeded together through the gar-dens, and, passing the Grand Trianon, he said, "I once had the intention of purchasthinking that, in these stormy tim would be more prudent to remain seclude having already made myself sufficiently con spicuous to dread another commotion."— We spoke of England and her constitution with the nature of the latter, he seem perfectly conversant. The name of Charles Fox suggested the following semarks:— "He was in Paris in 1802; I called upon him twice at his hotel in the Rus Richelieu, but was not fortunate enough to find him at home, or at a sat visible; I left a note for him in the following terms:—I beg to pre-sent my respects to Mr. Fox, and as I have always had a veneration for his character, which is known and admired by every re-publican, I request the honor of his compa-ny, and to name some morning for break-fasting with me, being extremely desirous to become acquainted with Mr. Fox.' I

We arrived at the house of our mutual friend, and, during the dinner, the conversation turned upon theatrical topics—the me rits of Talma and Fleury-the beauty and success of Mademoiselle Georges. Coffee was served. "I did not know you were acquainted with the gentleman who is now re-Monsieur de B .-- Nor am I; we met Versailles." -- " Do you know his nam

I deplored this lamentable event as much as any man in France, and my subsequent conduct in La Vendee, when appointed to act against the rebols, proves that, with every opportunity of exercising cruelty, I refrained from excess, and was even blamed by the Directory for not employing more severe mea-

TUBEDAY EVENING, OCT. 20, 1829.

By several arrivale from HAVRE, PARIS P. ers to the 20th of September have been ed; and the Pactric, also at Naw Youx, we take the summary of the Content ive. CIAL ADVERTISER, and have added other articles of interest. Count DIERRITICH, it will be seen, outered ADRIANCELE without impedi ment, on the 20th of August; having been de layed, in his march from the BALKAM, only by the necessary measures for the security of his rear. The belief appears to be prevalent that the Russian Emperor will still consent to make peace, but only on such terms as will place TURKEY permanently at his mercy.

The opposition papers in Panus continue to represent their ministers with subserviously to Lord WELLINGTON; as a new proof of which they cite the appointment of the Duke de Lanew changes in the Farncz cabinet were in sirculation. La Farzzz salurned to Pansa, on the 18th of September, from a visit to his grand-daughter, near Lyone. It is remarked hat, at the namerous festive meetings to which he was invited, in the course of his journey, the toyal family was never mentioned.

The editor of the Lunson Counses, noticing he reports that have occasionally appeared i some of our papers respecting the health of the President, informs his readers that, if General ACKNOW "should die in the first year of his Presidency, the supreme authority must at once evert to Mr. Aname."

The frigate Construction arrived a Cowgs on the 13th.

The incresent and most unscrupulous attacks of the Monning Jounnal, have at length worn nt the patience of Lord WELLINGTON; and the editors have been indicted. At a meeting of creditors and others, held at

Covent Garden theatre on the 9th, a subscrip ion was got up, sufficient, it was thought, to save the properties from the hammer. Mr. KEMBLE assured the meeting that arrangements had been made to secure the articles when once released from existing claims. Gronge Routes. the famous auctioneer, was in the chair, and subscribed one hundred nounds. The divices from the seat of war are to the

The Advices from the seat of war are to the 23d of August, by way of Odesse. At that time the commander-in-their was marching towards Araba Bergas, on his way to Constantinople, and kept up a regular communication with the army under Gen. Roth. The fleet was daily obtaining advantages, and Admiral Greig had captaining advantages, and Admiral Greig had captained Iniada, eitoated on the Black Ses, whence they could reach Constantinople very easily. It was said that Vice Admiral Ricord, who was stationed before Tenedos, had received orders to assist the operations of the army, and as soon as he was advised of the arrival of General Roth at Rodosto, he was to attempt the passage of as he was advised of the arrival of General Roth at Rodoste, he was to attempt the passage of the Dardanelles. It was supposed that this would be vary easy, as the Turkish fleet was shut up in the pert of Bujakdere.

The Russian Army entered Adrianople on the 20th of August, the Commander-in-chief at the head. The force which took possession of the place amounted to $6,000 men, of whom only 3000 were kept in the city, the rest were disposed of in several directions, and a corps was sont ten leagues in advance on the road to Censtantinople.

Paris files, six days later than the date of this rumour, any confirmation of it.

Commercial fettors received from Sophia on the 30th August, on the frentiers of Servia, announced, that after leaving Adrianople, a strong column of the main army moved upon Fery towards the gilf of Enos, the main body marching towards Constantinople. It was supposed that the division which had taken the route of Fery, was to affect a junction with the squadron stationed before the Direlancile; which excited alarm among the inhabitants of Suphia. Constantinople would be menaved on two points.—The same accounts stated that Baron Muffing was about quiting that capital, and that the Amonasadors of the Netherlands had gone already.

Amonasadors of the Nutherlands had gone already.

An interesting ceremony took place at 8t. Petersburgh on the 18th of August, in the church of the Transfiguration, which had been repaired after the desiruction of the interior by an inconducty, and was again open for worship. The laye of the captured Turkish fortresses, the batens of the commanders, horsetails, imagain of the Paches, standards, fie., to the number of 600, through the whole empire, excepting Georgian and Bossarshis, of three recreits out of every $800 souls.

It was accorded at Frankfort, on the 9th September, that the Grand Duke Constantine, after his return from the Baths at Emos, would reside in that city, where his wife would receive medical sid. The great fair at Frankfort was about opening. It was said that very few of the emanufacturers of Belgian elects could attend, as they had bearsed by aspariance, that the great concourse of sative manufacturers prevented them from doing much more than covering their expenses.

FRANCE.—The Journal dis Commerce of the 19th says, it was considered certain, even by the friends of the parties, that Messrs, do in Hourdonaye, de Bourmont, and de Montbel, would leave the Council, and he replaced by M. de Belleyme, as Minister of the Interior. M. the Duke d'Escars, of War, and M. de Vatime of Public instruction. It adds, that M. de Courvivisier, and even M. de Haussen would be involved, it was said, in this downfall. The latter would be replaced by M. de Rigny, and the seals given either to M. Guerson de Ranville or M. de Chantelause.—This intelligence, received on change towards the close, was at first rejected with distrust, but finally gained credit, and created much gratification.

No mention, it will be seen, is made of the Prince de Polignac; and the correspondent of the London Globe in a letter published in that paper on the evening of the 18th ult. (the latest English paper we have) says, it is thought he will remain in, in which case no ministry he can form will stend. Speaking of the seizures of the French papers, he stypes.

'Netwithemeding the rigour with which the

"Notwellemanding the rigour with which the journals have been attacked, they are still very impudent; one of them (the Figure) says, "Les instrumens sont prets; if as manque qu'un chef d'orchestre," which may be thus translated:—
"Every thing is ripe for a revolution—a leader only is wanted." This paper has been seized.
The Duke de Laval has been appointed Minister to England in place of the Prince Polignac.

The Seine has not risen for thirteen years, The Seine has not risen for thirteen years, in the month of September, to the height it attained this year. Its height at the stairs of the Bridge de la Tournelle, on the 17th of September, was 2 metres 29 cent; at that of Pert Royal three met. Og cent. They wrote from Rouen, on the 15th, that the communes along the Seine, among others those of Saint Martin de Boschervitle, Bardoaville, Ambulle, Ambulle, Yville, Juminges, &c. have been laid waste by a freshet such as has not happened at the same season, in the memory of man. It was occasioned by the continued rains which had not ceased failing for several months, and had swollen the Seine. The farmers would not gather an eighth part of their average products. The country also was severely afflicted by fever.

Prosecutions had been commenced against the conductors of six Paris Journals, for announcing the seuscription bretonne; also against three, for having defamed the Neapolitan Ambaseador, and against the Editor of a Marseilles paper, for some cause not assigned.

A woman died sud only at Paris, aged 47 years, of a singular malady, which has been constantly increasing since the year 1815 during which time, she refused all medical assistance. She was opened, and a scribrous and fibrous tumour, weighing average-years pounds, was extracted from her abdomen. Its circumference was ten feet.

A subterranean chateau has been discovered at Jemelle, a village about a quarter of a league north-east of Rochefort. It is very ansient, and they were angaged is apploring it.

"The Purinquose squadron, after the attack upon Terevira, had been dispersed; a part heving arrived at St. Michael's with the Don John 74, the other part with two frigates, (oue dismuted.) at Fayal, the soldiers appear to Lave received a great fright. The officers declare it would take 10,000 men to capture so formidable an island as Terceira."

A letter from St. Michael's dated the 19th, states that—"All who landed were killed or taken prisoners, except one officer, who escaped by swimming. The 74 seems much shattered, and has 29 balls in her hull. She discharged upwards of 1,900 balls, most of which were without effect, whilst every shot from the shore told. I believe two of the frigates have gone into Fayal, one totally dismusted."

The last Russian bulletins pracent a mass of intelligence, of which for the convenience of our readers we shall give a general view, and describe a succession of military movements and proceedings, which would be interesting to military men as a professional study, without reference to their general results. These results, however, are most important. The operations recorded by Gen. Diebitsch embrace an extensive field. From Aidos, as a centre, the Russian General has within a few days swept, with different corps of his great army, an arch approachsive field. From Aidos, as a centre, the Russian General has within a few days swept, with different corps of his great army, an arch approaching to a semicircle, the northern point of which rests on Shumla, the seuthern on Adrianople.—On the 16th ult. the seventh Russian corps was in possession of Karnabat, a valuable central point among the mountains, placed at a junction of several roads, in a direction W. N. W. of Aidos, and about one third of the way between the latter post and Selimno. At the same time Count Disbitach ordered the sacond corps, under Count Disbitach ordered the sacond corps, under Count Pahlen, to occupy Karabunary, about 40 miles due south of Aidos, to push its advance guard a long dayr march further south of Faki, and to reconficite through a line nearly east and west, from Tirnowo through Adrianople. The easy execution of these orders proves how slenderly the Turks held possession of their own country, and how pultry was their general resistance to the invader. With a view to cut off the communications of the Grand Visier with Adrianople, and to eastablish himself on an inner line of posts in a direction nearly parallel to the sistance to the invader. With a view to cut off the communications of the Grand Vizier with Adrianople, and to establish himself on an inner line of posts in a direction nearly parallel to the Danube, but in the nature of a third parallel towards Constantinople—Count Diebitsch combined a double movement, one immediately against the rear of Shumla, the other against the town of Salimno, and the great road leading south from it, by-Jambel, to Adrianople. Gen. Krasowski executed the former of these operations, by forcing his way from Marsah through Eski-Stamboul, and to the westward of it, thereby blocking up the central road which roins to Adrianople by Kawabat. The troops of the Vizier on this occasion, seem to have given way aftervery little fighting, and to have lost between 500 and 600 men. In pursuance of the second project, which was executed on a more extensive scale. Gen. Sheremeitef, of the 7th corps, proceeded from Karnabat about the 29th of July, to feel for the Turks towards Jambol. On the road thither, with one brigade of Hulane and some Cossacks, he fell in a tith a corps of no less than fifteen thousand of the enemy, commanded by Heili Pacha. The disproportion must have been eight or ten to one, and yet it appears that the Russian cavalry attacked and overthrew the Pacha's army, drove them into the town of Jambol, and burnt the Turkish camp. The axtreme distrust of themselves, and broken spirits of the Ottomann, showed itself in a shameful dight from Jambol, from the apprehension that 100 Cossacks, who were left before the town in observation by General Sheremetief, when he retired to join his head-quarters at Karnabat, were but the advance guard of the whole Russian army; which was the next day destined to attack them. Learning that the Grand Vizier had made his way out of Choumh by the wortern road, the only one deft open, and was proceeding to Salimno, in the supposition that the route from thence to Adrianople would be uneccupied, Count Diebitsch drew together troops from every quartar, from th is, from Aidos, Sizeboli, Karnabat, and Karna-bunar; and with two corps d'armee, a division of a third corps, and a large body of cavalry—al-together, perhaps, not far short of 26,000 or 28,000 men—he moved upon Selimno, and on the 12th ult. attacked the Visier in his position at and before that place. The engagement apat and before that place. The engagement appears to have been neither long nor doubtful.—The Turks were beaten without any difficulty, and dispersed with a loss to the Russians of not more than 60 men. Indeed, the account given by the bulletin very candidly clips the laurele of the conquerors, by stating that "the terror of the enemy is so great, that he has not the courage to make any considerable stand, and it appears that in this respect the leaders of the troops set the example." What can be hoped for by any army when its chiefs are the first to run away? What, again, can be hoped for a state, the subjects of which are every where emuleum to obtain an invader's friendship? The bulk of the inhabitants of Belgaria are Christians. state, the subjects of which are every where emulous to obtain an invader's friendship! The bulk of the inhabitants of Bulgaria are Christians, and come forth in crowds to seek protection from the Imporial troops. The issue of matters at present is, that on the 20th Count Diebitsch entered Adrianople, with his army, having met with no further resistance. He had already formed a new basis, on which to rest his forcesfrom Selimne on the right, to Aidoe, on the left; Adrianople, Kirk-klisss, and through Timowe to the Euxine, would form a still clear line of investment towards Constantinophs. On the coast itself he has extended his garrisons southwards, by the recent seizure of Wasilike and Agteboli, both lying between Sisaboli and the espital, which fall to Admiral Greig and his ships. If the Russian arms be now arrested, it is unquestionably not by force. The schemes of Catharine have abundantly succeeded. What new schemes my graw out of their accomplishment belongs to a different chapter.

The intelligence from the East, ence our last, has added but bitle to our trowledge. It has only filled up the outline of the facts with which we were already acquanted. Thus we have the details of the triumphal entry of the Russian army at Adviance], its Commander.in-Chief riding at its head, and the whole population assembled as on a day of fate, to enjoy the aplandid spectacle. Only 5,100 man, it will be seen by the following extracts, were kept within the city; the rest were disposed of in several directione, and a corps was sent ten leagues in advance on the road to Constantinople. The advanced posts of General Disbitsch's army were, therefore, on the night of the Sist, not more than twenty leagues (or sixty miles) distant from the capital. The number of troops with which he entered Adrianople was 28,050; but the whole amount of the army now acting with him in Romelia is said to be 80,000. It is propoble that he will continue to push his postation of the said of the s for those would run me danger from fire of the opposite batteries. As to the opation of the celebrated castles of the Darmeller, it could be effected without any difficity, for though very strong towards the nea, there scorrolly any defences on the land side. from the

A letter from Pers, of the 16th of Aug. says, that the Russian Commissioners had received orders to repair to the Russian head quarters. The demands of the Ports are said to be "the evacuation of the Turkish territories and all the fortresses by the Russians, and the integrity of the Empire, with the exception of the Morea and Cyclades, which it will recognise as independent, provided the tribate is equal to the taxes formerly levied there. On these terms the Porte will consent punctually to exacute the Treaty of Ackerman, and to open the Bosphorus to the commissioned to negotiate with Gen. REMARKABLE FRUITGALY.

A Correspondent residing in Sanquhar, writes us that while on the way to Edinburgh last week, he stopped at a place called Newlandbridge, about twenty miles from "Auld Reekie," where he had dinner, and heard the following story related by the landlered of the inn:—A young lad, about 22 years of age, had held the situation of hostler for a pe-riod of four years, and during that time lad which he deposited in the parish bank, and his kist. About two weeks ago, his master determined upon pulling down the old inn, in order to build one more commodious, and botter suited to the rising importance of the place; and amongst other things, the hos-der's trunk was transferred from the inn garret, to his father's barn, a distance of two or three miles, where his sister, who was every whit as economical as himself, had ong kept her treasure. His father occu-sies a small farm, and is justly proud of his ndustrious and steady children; and having occasion to go out one morning about 4 o'clock, he went, as was his wont, into the barn where "all their treasures were," just to see if one shaith had happened. A short me satisfied him that all was right; but his laughter, who visited the bank about two sours afterwards, found to ber indescribable hours afterwards, found to her indescribable dismay, that her box had been feloniously broken into, and all her savings "stown away." She soon alarmed her brother, who almost flew to the spot; but oh, what cruelty! his £40 had also been carried off, and no trace of the thieres could be found. Thus by this foul act, have two individuals, who had earned, by their industry and good behaviour, a competency for their declining years, been rendered comparatively pennyless. The lad, it is true, has yet £20 remaining, but still the case is hard; his master sava

A rich farmer in Yerkshire lately placed a roll of bank notes, amounting to 500l, amongst lumber in an old closet; thinking they would be secure from thieves, from the absence of any suspicion that any thing valuable could be found in such a situation. Some time after he went, as rich men will, to look at his heard, and see that all was safe, when to his great dismay he found that his trassure had vanished. For a time he was all amaxement, as he had constantly kept the key himself; but on close inspection a mouse-hole was found near the place of deposit. The poor mouse's castle was instantly stormed, when it was discovered she had applied the notes to make a nest, which was at the moment occupied by her young progeny. With a pelpitating heart the farmer saw the state of his notes, which had been reduced by the little builder to fragments; but—and it is not the least singular part of the 'account—so careful had she been of her materials, that not a particle was lost, and the farmer, after due exercise of diligence, was overjoyed at being able to make good his claim for the full value of the materials employed by the extravagant little architect A mouse's nest with five hundred pour als employed by the extravagant little architect in the construction of her costly dwelling.

By several arrivals from HAVRE, PARIS pa ers to the 20th of September have been re seived; and the Pacific, also at NEW YORK has brought our LONDON files to the 15th inclu-sive. We take the summary of the COMMER-CIAL ADVERTISER, and have added other articles of interest. Count DIEBITSCH, it will be seen, entered ADRIANOPLE without impediment, on the 20th of August; having been do layed, in his march from the BALKAN, only by the necessary measures for the security of his The belief appears to be prevalent that the Russian Emperor will still consent to make peace, but only on such terms as will place TURKEY permanently at his mercy.

The opposition papers in PANIS continue to represent their ministers with subserviously to Lord WELLINGTON; as a new proof of which they cite the appointment of the Duke de La-VAL SE Ambanader to ENGLAND. Reports of new changes in the Farmer cabinet were is circulation. La FATETTE returned to Panie, on the 18th of September, from a visit to his grand-daughter, near Lyons. It is remarked that, at the numerous festive meetings to which in was invited, in the course of his journey, the

The incresant and most unsefupulous attacks of the Monning Jounnal, have at length worn out the patience of Lord WELLINGTON; and the editors have been indicted.

At a meeting of creditors and others, held at Covent Garden theatre on the 9th, a subscripion was got up, sufficient, it was thought, to save the properties from the hammer. The divices from the seat of war are to the 23d of August, by way of Odessa. At that time the commander-in-chief was marching towards Araba Bergas, on his way to Constantinople, and kept up a regular communication with the army under Gen. Roth. The fleet was daily obtaining advantages, and Admiral Greig had captured Insada, cituated on the Black Sea, whence tored treads, estudied on the Black Sas, whence they could reach Constantinople very easily. It was said that Vice Admiral Ricord, who was stationed before Tenedos, had received orders to assist the operations of the army, and as soon as he was advised of the arrival of General Roth as he was advised of the arrival of General Roth at Rodosto, he was to attempt the passage of the Dardanelies. It was supposed that this would be very easy, as the Turkish fleet was shut up in the port of Bujukdere.

The Russian Army entered Adrianople on the 20th of August, the Commander-in-chief at the head. The force which took possession of the place amounted to $6,000 men, of whom only 3000 were kept in the city; the rest were disposed of in several ducations, and a corne was and sed of in several directions, and a corpe was but ten leagues in advance on the road to Constar

Tokat in the beginning of that month.

Letters received from the frontiers of Servia, dated September 5th, announced that Rodosto was eaptured by the army under General Roth, on the 25d August. A great quantity of provisions of war were found in that place. It is the central point of the commerce of the sea of Marmora, not far distant from the old forts of the Dardanelles in Europe, to which there is a good road along the coast. The same advices usention a deputation seen by the Divan to General Debtsch, to pray him, while the negociamention a deputation sent by the Divan to General Diebitsch, to pray him, while the negociations for peace were open, not to attack the capital; as the mere approach of the Russian troops might excite a popular insurraction, which would expose Constantinople to the greatest distresses. It is affirmed that General D. replied to the envoys, that it depended on the Ports to have the contral property. save the capital and prevent the effusion of blood; that the declaration of the Emperor at the commencement of the war was distinct and known by all the world; and the Turkish Commissioners come to his head quarters to treat of peace, military operations would follow their course, until the end; and that he would not return the sword to the scabthe Tuckish Co. hard, until the Russian nation had received so bard, until the Russian nation had received sa-turfaction for all the grievances it had suffared. Prince Milocels was making, at this date, a tour of inspection in all parts of Servia. It was reported that General Geismar had received fresh treops, and was about to resume offensive operations on the right bank of the Danubs. A Bucharest date of the 26th of August an-nounced that on the 18th there had been a brisk conflict under the walls of Shumla, which termi-nated in the outer works of the place being car-ried by General Krasowski. The latter would have pushed his advantages forther, if the Grand have pushed his advantages further, if the Grand Vizier had not announced to him that he had re-ceived orders to treat, and had written to Gen. Diebitech to know at what place the plenipotes traries should meet.

The rumour was, that the Commissioners to The rumous was, that the Commissigners to treat with Diebitsch, left Constantinople the lath August; one account stated that the Reis Effendi was going in person; but no mention was made of this in advices received in England from Mr. Gordon, of the 20th; nor do we find in our face of the state of the s Paris files, oir days later than the date of this ramour, any continuation of it.

It was supposed that the division which had taken the route of Ferr, was to effect a junction with the squadran stationed before the Disclanelle; which excited starts among the inhabitants of Sophia. Constantinople would be menived on two points.—The atmost accounts stated that Baron Mulfling was about quitting that conditioned and that the was about quitting that capital, and that the Amusasadors of the Netherlands had gone al-

An interesting reremony took place at St. Patersburgh on the lêth of August, in the church of the Transfiguration, which had been repaired after the destruction of the interior by an incendiary, and was again open for worship. The keys of the captured Turkish fortresses, the batons of the commanders, hersetails, issignia of the Pachas, standards, &c., to the number of 600, were tastafully arranged on the walls; the spoils taken in Europe being on the right of the principal entrance, and those taken in Asia di the left. Under the keys were seen the memorable names of the fortreases of Brailed, Anapea, Kars, Akalispk, Varna, Silietrie, and Emiroun. A proclamation was issued on the 23d August. O. France.—The Journal da Commerce of the 18th says, it was considered certain, even by the friends of the parties, that Memra de la Bourdonaye, de Bourmont, and de Montbel, would leave the Council, and be replaced by M. de Belleyme, as Minister of the Interior, M. the Duka d'Escars, of War, and M. de Vatime of Public Instruction. It adds, that M. de Courvoisier, and even M. de Hausen would be involved, it was said, in this downfall. The latter would be replaced by M. de Rigny, and the seals given either to M. Guernon de Ranville or M. de Chantelause.—This intelligence, received on change towards the close, was at first rajected with distrust, but finally gained credit, and created much gratification.

No mention, it will be seen, is made of the Prince de Polignac; and the correspondent of the London Globe in a letter published in that paper on the evening of the 18th ult. (the latest English paper we have) says, it is thought he will remain in, in which case no ministry he can form will stand. Speaking of the seizures of the French papers, he says:—

TEFFOLE.—The Semaphere has published a detailed account of the proceedings in Tripoli, relative to the papers of Major Laing, the celebrated African traveller, who was murdered in the desert on his return from Timbucton. He was first attacked by some Africans, who were watching his march, with a feeble escort; he defonded himself bravely, and had his right hand cut off. He subsequently wrote a letter to his wife with the left. Some time after, certain Gleadqures, who had formed a part of his escort, arrived at Tripoli, and informed Col. Warrington, father in-law of Major Laing, and Consul General of H. B. M. at Tripoli, that his son-in-law had been murdered in the desert. A rumor was spread, that the papers of Major Laing had been brought to Tripoli, and mysteriously received by a noted Turk, named Hassouna Dahies. This came to the ears of Col. Warrington, who immediately required the Pacha to examine into the affair. Hassouna took refuge with the Consul of the United States, Mr. Coxe. The Pacha informed this gentleman, that he respected the inviolability of the anylum he had granted to Hassouna; but as the testimony of the latter was material in investigating the ci cumstances attending the assassination of Major Laing, he prayed him not to favour his escape. Hassouna, however, sid leave Tripoli on the 9th August, disguissed, it was said, as an American officer and took refuge on board the limited States, areasyste four. Everifuld. THIPOLI.-The Semaphore has published escape. Hassouns, however, did leave Tripoli on the 9th August, disguised, it was said, as an American officer and took refuge on board the United States seventy four, Fairfield, commanded by Captain Parker. The captain, no doubt, was deceived as to the Turk's character. He weighed anchor on the morning of August 10th, la wessequence of this escape, Mohamed Dghies, hother of the rinsaway, was arrested and examined in the presence of the principal officers. He fell on his knees, and made a written declaration under oath, that his brother had had in his possession the papers of Major Laing, but had delivered them to a certain person who was to pay 40 per cent, upon the dobts contracted by Hassoune, in France. The packet he described minutely, and said the seals were unbroken. Mohamed learing that his brother's crime might be visited on his head, a thing common in Tripoli, took refuge with the depositary of the papers, whose name is mysteriously kept silent.—The consults of the Netherlands, of Sweden, Denmark and Sardinia hereupon repaired to Denmark and Sardinia hereupon repaired to this person, and demanded the papers in the name of Col. Warrington. He replied very fiercely that Mohamed's declaration was a tissue of lies; and the latter, deeming his asy-lum involuble, discounced his ewa hand-writing. lum inviolable, disowned his own hand-writing. The Pacha became furious, and finding himself not secure. Mohamed repeated and confirmed what he had first stated, in presence of all the consuls. Thus the matter stood according to this account, and it does not appear what further proceedings were had. Major Laing, by reaching Timbuctoo, became entitled to the prize of £33,000 sterling, offered by the Royal Noticety. His papers must be immensely valuable.

"The Portuguese squadron, after the attack upon Terceira, had been dispersed; a part having arrived at St. Michael's with the Don John 74, the other part with two frigates, (one dismusted.) at Fayal, the soldiers appear to have received a great fright. The officers declare it would take 19,000 men to capture so formidable an island as Terceira."

A letter from St. Michael's dated the 19th, states that—"All who landed were killed or taken prisoners, except one officer, who escaped by swimming. The 74 seems much shattered, and has 29 balls in her hull. She discharged upwards of 1,900 balls, most of which were without effect, whist every shot from the shore told. I believe two of the frigates have gone into Fayal, one totally dismasted."

The last Russian bulletins present a mass of intelligence, of which for the convenience of our readers we shall give a general view, and describe a succession of mulitary movements and proceedings, which would be interesting to military men as a professional study, without reference to their general results. These results, however, are most important. The operations recorded by Gen. Diebitsch embrace an extensive field. From Aidos, as a centre, the Russian General has within a few days swept, with different corps of his groat army, an arch approaching to a semicircle, the northern point of which rests on Shumla, the southern on Adrianople.—
On the 16th ult. the seventh Russian corps was in possession of Karnabat, a valuable central point among the mountains, placed at a junction of several roads, in a direction W. N. W. of Aidos, and about one third of the way between the latter post and Solimno. At the same time Count Pahlen, to occupy Karabunary, about 40 miles due aouth of Aidos, to push its advance guard a long days march further south of Faki, and to reconficite through a line mearly east and west, from Tirnowo through Adrianople. The easy execution of these orders proves how slenderly the Turks held possession of their own country, and how paltry was their general resistance to the invader. With a view to cut off the communications of the Grand Visier with Adrianople, and to establish himself on an inner line of nosts in a direction nearly earth. sistance to the invader. With a view to cut off the communications of the Grand Vizier with Adrianople, and to establish himself on an inner line of posts in a direction nearly parallel to the Danube, but in the nature of a third parallel to wards Constantinople—Count Diebitsch combined a double movement, one immediately against the rear of Shumla, the other against the lown of Salimno, and the great road leading south from it, by Jambel; to Adrianople. Gen. Krasowski executed the former of these operations, by forcing his way from Marsah through Eski-Stamboul, and to the westward of it, thereby blocking up the central road which runs to Adrianople by Kassabat. The troops of the Vizier on this occasion, seem to have given way after very little fighting, and to have lost between 800 and 800 men. In pursuance of the eccoud project, which was executed on a more extensive scale, Gen. Sheremetief, of the 7th corps, proceeded from Karnabat about the 29th of July, to feel for the Turks towards Jambol. On the road thither, with one brigade of Hulans and some Cossacks, he fell in with a corps of no less than fifteen thousand of the enemy, communded by Halil Pacha. The dispreportion must have been eight or ten to one, and yet it appears that the Russian cavalry attacked and overthrew the Pacha's army, dreve them into the town of Jambol, and burnt the Turkish camp. The extreme distruct of themselves, and broken spirits of the Ottomans, showed itself in a shameful dight from Jambol, from the apprehension that 100 Cossacks, who were left before the town in observation by General Sheremetief, when he retired to join his head-quarters at Karnabat, were but the advance guard of the whole Russian army; which was the next day destined to attack them. Learning that the Grand Vizier had made his way out of Choumh hy the western road, the only one left open, and was preceeding to Science, who were left before the town in observation by General Sheremetief, when he retired to join his head-quarters at Karnabat, were but the advance bunar; and with two corps d'armes, a division of bunar; and with two corps d'armee, a division of a third corps, and a large body of cavalry—altogether, perhaps, not far short of 26,000 or 28,000 men—he moved upon Selimao, and on the 12th ult. attacked the Visier in his position at and before that place. The engagement appears to have been neither long nor doubtful. pears to have been neither long nor doubtful.—
The Turks were beaten without any difficuly, and dispersed with a loss to the Russians of not more than 60 men. Indeed, the account given by the bulletin very candidly clips the laurels of the conquerors, by stating that "the terror of the enemy is so great, that he has not the couthe enemy is so great, that he has not the cou-rage to unake any considerable stand, and it ap-pears that in this respect the leaders of the troops set the example." What can be hoped for by any army when its chiefs are the first to run away? What, again, can be hoped for a state, the subjects of which are every where emulous to obtain an invader's friendship? The emulous to obtain an invader's friendship? The bulk of the inhabitants of Bulgaria are Christians, and come forth in crowds to seek protection from the Imporial troops. The issue of matters at present is, that on the 20th Count Diebitsch entered Adrianople, with his army, having met with no further resistance. He had already formed a new basis, on which to rest his forces—from Selimno on the right, to Adoe, on the left; Adrianople, Kirk-klissi, and through Timowe to the Euxine, would form a still claser line of investment towards Constantinople. On the cast itself he has extended his garrisons southwards, by the recent seizure of Wasiliko and Agtebeli, beath lying between Sizaboli and the capital. by the recent seisure of Wasilike and Agtebeli, both lying between Sizebeli and the capital, which fell to Admiral Greig and his ships. If the Russian arms be now arrested, it is unquestionably not by force. The schemes of Catharine have abundantly succeeded. What new schemes may grow out of their accomplishment belongs to a different chapter.

The intelligence from the East, ence our last, has added but little to our knowledge. It has only filled up the outline of the facts with which we were already acquainted. Thus we have the details of the triumphal entry of the Russian army at Adrianople, its Commander-in-Chief riding at its hoad, and the whole population assembled as on a day of fets, to enjoy the splandid spectacle. Only 5,000 man, it will be seen by the following extracts, were kept within the city; the rest were disposed of in several directions, and a corps was sent ten leagues in MALGERS.—Since the insult offered to the ship Prevence no communication had taken place, by the last accounts, between the blockading equadron and the town; except that the English corrector Panders sailed out of the port with a white flag, conveying to the French Administration. The following extract of a private laster from a Russian Officer, dated Adviancele, August 21, is given by the Angelsergh Gazette:—"Upon our taking possession of this city yesterday, the greatest tranquility prevailed. The troops which should have defended it having fled, Cossachs were sent in pursuit of them. Many of the inhabitants came out to meet us, and the whole population flocked tegether to witness our entry, and were struck with the order that was maintained in every direction. The Commander:a-Chief having taken possession of the our entry, and were stuck with the order that was maintained in every direction. The Commander-in-Chief having taken possession of the ancient seraglio, a deputation of the Notables, and all the Consuls went to pay him their respects. The former solicited his protection, and promised to co-operate in the maintainance of tranquillity. The most friendly reception was given to us, and we perceived clearly that civilization has made much greater progress in this country than is generally supposed. The ancient fanatical seal of the Musselmans has disappeared; and the lower classes alone continue to despise these who are of another religion than themselves. The principal Musselmans seem to feel the weight of despotism that oppresses the nation, and are sincerely desirous of getting rid of it. What surprised us most, is the existence of an almost general Association, which was formed at the time of the overthrow of the Janissaries, was created by a Freemason; the members recognize each other by the signs of Freemasonry, and keep the same silence upon the Order and its object. The Ottoman Government does not appear to be aware of the Association, which was formed of the Association, which was formed the statemen of the Association, which was formed to appear to be aware of the Association, which was the order and its object. man Government does not appear to be aware of the existence of this Association, which may

An extract of another lefter, dated Adrianople, August 21, says:—"Yesterday morning our army took possession of this second eity of the Empire. A division of Chasseurs on foot, with two companies of artillery, and then the whole army—the General-in-Chief riding in front. The bands of each regiment played the Reseat national air, and when the Commander-in-Chief stopped at the old seraglio to see the troops he off, the men saluted him with huzzas. Universal astonishment seized the Turks at the sight of our truops, who passed through them with an order which they had never seen before. We too, were struck at the strange sight of the thousands of people in oriental costume who crowded the streets. After the army had passed, several battalions were stationed in the market-places and squares in the interior of the city, and the General took his quarters in the old seraglio.

The situation of Adrianople is extremely deslightful. The banks of the Marfiza, which here receives the Tundsche and the Arda, are covered with rose-bushes. The city is surrounded with walls, and has eleven gates. It has a square citadel, with four round and twelve other towers. In the eitadel is an another than the second of the different quarters of the city at the genter by 13 bridges over the Tundsche and Arda. On these terms the Ports will consent punctually to execute the Treaty of Ackerman, and to open the Bosphorus to the commerce of Russia." NEW YORE, Oct. 19. A HAWKER OUTWITTED.—On Saturday at dinner time, a hawker called at a dwelling which happened to be that of a dry good mer-chant, and offered to sell some merino shawls, of which he had several. The gentleman did not wish to buy any himself, but remarked that he had an acquaintance in the Park, who he presumed would like to take a number; and that if it was desired, he would accompany him to 800 dollars.—Mer. Ads.

On Thursday last, some old silver was offered for sale by a boy whose maneer and actions excited surpicion, and he was accordingly conducted to the Police office. His examination induced one of the officers to proceed to the place named as his residence, where he discovered a variety of goods which the possessors were unable to account for. While he was in the house, two physicians came in, who were sent for to examine a wound which one of the inmates had brought into the Court of General Sessions, to receive their sentones:—

Francis Fitsherbert, alian Fitzoimmons, a youth of 18 convicted of burglary, was sentonced to the State Frison at Sing Sing for the term of his natural life.

Allaton Place, Robert A. Young, and John McClimus alian William Wallace, were brought to the bar. Place was ashed what he had to any why assumes should not be pronounced against him, to which he answered, that he alone was guilty of the crime allaged against him. The Recorder observed that they all had been in different State Frisons; that one alone could not have carried off the bags of silk from Mess. Howland's stors; and that the evidence of the guilt of all was conclusive. Place was nestoned to the State Prison for 14 years, and the others for 7 years each. These criminals are notorious offenders. McClaw was 19 years in the State Prison near Boston, eight of which he passed in all line conferences.

John G. Smith and William Thompson, two

John G. Smith and William Thempson, two coloured men, convicted of grand larceny, were sentenced to be imprisoned for four years.

Daniel Lane, Alexander Batten, and Mary Taylor, were each sentenced for three years and one day.

William T. Purdy, convicted of obtaining goods by false pretences, was sentenced to be imprisoned for three years on Black well's Island, and to be employed in getting out stone. Before rentence was prenounced, Mr. Rowley, one of his counsel, moved a suspension of the act, until Joseph F. Carr, convicted at the same time, could be found. The Recorder said it was impossible to grant the request. The crime time, could be found. The Recorder said it was impossible to grant the request. The crime deserved sevarity of punishment, and the prevision of the law which authorised the Court to punish such offences with imprisonment only in the Penitentiary, was manifestly unequal. The prisoner by his manner and respectable appearance, had imposed upon an unsuspecting man, and awindled him out of his property.

Gabriel McGee, for an assault, was sentenced to the negliantiary for 18 months.

Gabriel McGee, for an assault, we do to the penitentiary for 18 months

A Correspondent residing in Sanguhar, last week, he stopped at a place called New-landbridge, about twenty miles from "Auld Reckie," where he had dinner, and heard he following story related by the landlord of the inn:—A young lad, about 22 years of age, had held the situation of hostler for a peod of four years, and during that time had saved no less than £60 of hard cash! £20 f which he deposited in the parish bank, and the balance he reserved in a snug corner of his kist. About two weeks ago, his master determined upon pulling down the old inn, in order to build one more commodious, and etter suited to the rising importance of the place; and amongst other things, the bos-tler's trunk was transferred from the inn garret, to his father's barn, a distance of was every whit as economical as himself, had long kept her treasure. His father occu-pies a small farm, and is justly proud of his industrious and steady children; and having ccasion to go out one morning about 4 clock, he went, as was his wont, into the barn where "all their treasures were," just to see if nae skaith had happened. A short time satisfied him that all was right; but his laughter, who visited the bank about two urs afterwards, found to her indescribable dismay, that her box had been feloniously broken into, and all her savings "stown away." She soon alarmed her beather way." She soon alarmed her brother, who almost flew to the spot; but oh, what cruelty! his £40 had also been carried off, and no trace of the thieves could be found. Thus by this foul act, have two individuals who had earned, by their industry and good who had earned, by their industry and good behaviour, a competency for their declining years, been rendered comparatively penny-less. The lad, it is true, has yet £20 remain-ng, but still the case is hard; his master say wrought sore for it, and passed many proper measures will be resorted to bring o justice the perpetrators of such a wanton crimo .- Dumfries Courier. A mouse's nest with five hundred pounds .--

A meuse's nest with five hundred pounds.—A rich farmer in Yerkshire lately placed a roll of bank notes, amounting to 500l, amongst lumber in an old closet; thinking they would be secure from thieves, from the absence of any suspicion that any thing valuable could be found in such a situation. Some time after he went, as rich men will, to look at his heard, and see that all was safe, when to his great dismay he found that his treasure had vanished. For a time he was all amazement, as he had constantly kept the key himsulf; but on close inspection a mouse-hole was found near the place of deposit. The poor mouse's castle was instantly stormed, when it was discovered she had applied the notes to make a nest, which was at the moment occupied by her young progeny. With a pelpitating heart the farmer saw the state of his notes, which had been reduced by the little builder to fragments; but—and it is not the least engular part of the account—so careful had she been of her materials, that not a particle was lost, and the farmer, after due exercise of diligence, was overjoyed at being able to make good his claim for the full value of the materials employed by the extravagant little architect in the construction of her costly dwelling.

Naples Compound Shaving Cake. Naples Compound Shaving Cake, TMHS cake is intended for those only who are willing to purchase the "top of the market." It is higher priced then any other soap, and is of corresponding excellence. It is a preparation combining the properties of the far famed Staples soap, and the pure English can do soap, and has been rendered more cary and agreeable in use; and been made susceptible of a such higher grade of perfume, without endangering its remarkable qualities.

The Naples Soap is, without contradiction, superior to all others, and one which can be made in no other country than that from whence imported, and yet is itself is not at agreeable as it is valuable; but when prepared in the manner of the cretowed, it decidedly improved for one, and yetch a latter close, bull, rich, paramanent, and the manner of the evoluted, is decidedly improved for e, and yields a latter close, full, rich, permanent, and streative of its moisture; and is offered to the Beau double as a preparation superior to all others within the sowindage of the Midhitacturer.
